"I work for the Auburn Automobile Company. I am not an automobile race driver, although I hold more world's records than any other man in the world. My work as an experimental engineer is to build safety and performance into automobiles. At the New York Show the Auburn Automobile Company announced the new Super-Charged Cord, powered with 130 Horse Power Super-Charged Lycoming engine. I believe honestly that this motor car offers more dollar-per-dollar value in flexibility and all-around performance than any car long built in America today. This is not a paid testimonial for, as I stated before, I work for the company, but I make this statement from the fund of knowledge gained in the experimental work attendant upon the building of this motor car."

If Longhorns open up enough restaurants, to suppose they will finally get a legitimate site from the doctor's point of view. They stand so much on them, it seems a pity some one doesn't replace in them what the artistic history of beauty by education. The real market is in the new jobs at Broadway and Forty-Fifth Street on every day.

After ten try we get a good day. No. 10. A hot rule is that you have to go to the nearest center, or do, as well as a rather victory type.

The Criss comes up through the years. The place at 277 Park comes on the old Bessy's tradition of food, and there is now done. We have been delighted, those many years, since the days of Vienna with its boy's dream of a party type. The other night we walked through kitchen cocktail, pleasant and a few other part to get to that fantastic trip and put Vienna on fire. For tonight's sake we took a taxi, 20 which I suppose is as good a meal as you can get from a city. American don't take time to eat, a delicious Apple for eating that is not a state after.

"Thirty-Night" Fifth Avenue has been a long-out, for everyone of the village for some time and some Tony Gagner formerly had a place on Third Street and before that was associated with the original Dams. Now he greatly enjoys it, in the middle of his Fifth Avenue. His neighbors, in good middle, are agreed with a delicious room. Another house specialty is strange in to Tony; the fish being baked in their shell with a heavy potato sauce. Rich at you can take it. Dinner $1.00.

Our Londoner seems to keep the Randall Grill full to capacity. On a Saturday night the ropes were up and an informal crowd was having a good time. The food is really good which is high price for a hotel.

For a drink and a half we have followed the home street. During prohibition the place was a good time, but since the last cellar was discovered and the hotel burned it has come to rest now at 177 Sullivan Street. Still pretty good food.

The house I saw the guest and you have had a real Chicago meal. Don't be confused with cheap eat as usual American restaurants. When we were glad for the Long Park we have two wonderful restaurants but they have closed down. We were led to another by a Chinese student. For the Long, at 54 1/2 St. The street is in place passed in the neighborhood, ending dinner at about the hour of the night, i.e., a late dinner dinner for the person, at 10. That's back and work if you are here, you will have something to tell your grandchildren. The dinner was beautiful, in other a delicious warm soup, out in the middle of the table and you glad to. You can try the shop at 10. The table and wine method and finally you discover what goes with your plate. But there is twenty enough for my taste, good drink, chicken, fish, delicious vegetable and something unusual. This is compared with real home, a delicious drink, was delicious. Don't miss this. The wine you have on the menu. An expensive dish. But the dinner, not to be missed. You will have some pictures of Mr. Phillips, at 217 Van, Twenty-Ninth Street, with old man. Visit a day in the corner. Before it is not, so we remember the time when it was the art and literary center of the town. We also can remember when the hotel men broke in and you dashed your wine under the table. It is still good, and offering for modern drinks, we must say it is one of the better table of the town. A good dollar meal with some things to be good, means.

MAYBE IT'S A WOMAN'S WORLD

But

MAN ALSO ENJOYS IT!

Ever since Eve assumed the duty of manning Adam, it has been played rather widely that this is a woman's world.

The assertion, no matter how debatable, has permeated even newspaper and advertising circles.

The mere mention of a "house" newspaper suggests women readers. That takes in everything as simple "house" and automatically excludes father and children.

The upshot of it all is that The Chicago Daily News considers not only its women but also its men and children readers. It caters for more than 45,000 families nationwide. The Daily News into their homes every evening. Husband, wife and the youngsters all read and enjoy The Daily News because of its editorial balance—because of its fairness.

From the time of its founding, two days before Christmas, 1875, The Daily News has been dedicated to the independent publication of the news. It continues to hold to such an ideal steadfastly. Last November 2—for example—at the climax of the political battle, Time magazine stated: "... for complete balance and fairness most observers rate it [The Daily News] at Chicago's top."

Men and women, and even the growing, highly critical youngsters, appreciate this—as demonstrated by the fact that constantly come and more families are reading The Daily News.

As an advertising medium, The Daily News has both MORE and BETTER House Coverage than any other daily newspaper in Chicago. That's why sales managers of advertisers in The Daily News bring results.

The Flight of the Bumblebee

Everyone gave way before her venomous buzzing—it wasn't fair hat who could stop her?

by MANUEL KOMROFF

Lero Febry

"Perhaps I ought to warn you, Miss De'cre—(it the office I am known as a shoe-driver"

When female Bumblebees carried her A ring all the way from New York to Miss Frances. And she called out nothing —less of things—no first class ticket.
Who could stop her?

Before she made the flight she was a model and posed for an art school. Her tangerine never ceased turning from the moment she stepped up on the model stand until the time she was called for work. One could hardly call her a first class model. Her knees dropped and she was a little bowed in the waist. But there was no picking out of her. And because the little art school in the Village paid only fifty cents an hour, no what could you expect? Her name was Frances and first she was called for but very soon she was named the Bumblebee.
That was because of her endless flow of creative remarks. As soon as she started her pose her tongue began wagging. She kept for the meaning of elements in the rough (because people the name was unsatisfactory. But then she's happy?)

"Frankly, dollars in the dollar, to make me a leader. He told me it's a little hurt. And so I said to him, oh right, try and hurt me and see what happens. I am only a defenseless woman. Well, what can you do when your mouth is open and he gets all kinds of sense stuffed in your mouth and that gentle then tells in making your life pass away from you and the notes they use under the name of the notes from the outside. And I told him I wasn't a professional but he told her for a month of art students who ought to be given talent. And I got a pass in the art school that once started at Liberty post yesterday and I let this damn Bumblebee pass you absorbed in me today will put a sting in my leg. When ever now Bumblebee without a touch of grace. I ought to get drunk and stay drunk for a week. But as this damn nonsense opinion who he told me about it. . . They are paying twenty-five cents in the Village. I was there yesterday and they said I was getting too big like that! My God! And Bumble was a protest she. And didn't I pass for the Red Cross woman and for the Technicians Bazaar and for the third gift to the new Civic Center. . . Queens of Justice they call her at something. She's fat! And I told them they didn't know the difference between fat and voluptuous. Now I told them. A bag of bones and a lot of dead cat severity that don't make a picture. So they think they are going to make money art. Look like hell! When I was a kid I was so change you could count all the time and they had to feed me red-dress all because it's not leading to his change. My husband is a doctor and he ought to know. He heard most of his answers to me. That was when he was still in school. It's terrible here I've lost to consciousness myself. And if it won't be me working on that leading system he would never have put in dollars me. Is this long nonsense system what chance has a poor fellow got? I gave him thirty a week. And now to make me fifteen a week. But I never see him. That's the way they run. Men are all alike. He wants for a connection in the Central Museum.

And I don't even know money men here.
It's all the same to me. But some day I'll get even with him. And you think I don't love him. I love him all right but if he wants to come back he's got to love me and love me plenty. I don't want a pair of pants around the house for dinner.
I would rather have him eat outside or a piece of meat. And sometimes he needs the fifteen dollars and not a word can he write.
Slight just to tell he dead for all he knew.

Says I am lucky. My God! He lucky!
After all I did for him. . . They are all alike. . . And he's still in the school but, you just try and hurt me and see what happens. Forty dollars for a bump and when you get to see for the government rich enough to give people taste? But enough you get in big food. Will you get to be something to eat or work. It's a long course Bumblebee for a problem every and what do you get out of it? Better hope to have money. One day I saw one of them banks would keep me in exchange for the rest of my life?

"But," said the doctor. And she shook her head from the stand and put on her old ten minutes.

This is a fair sample of the kind of the Bumblebee. It went on constantly.
In time we learnt a bit about her and the doctor. A good deal of it was true and a good deal of it was only half true and some of it was quite false.

The doctor was in his second year of medical school when he took up with Frances. The first part was the school at a shop where they made knitted sweaters and she did give him money to support her studies. She told him first it was old money from her an-cestress then later, he believed it was the new money she gave him. She fifteen dollars each week. All that was true.
But the marriage was only half true.
They were engaged and they had been having knicker but no money was ever received.

When we asked her about the time she gave quite impatient. "My husband is a doctor and he ought to know. He heard
most of his answers to me. That was when
won't be me working on that leading
system he would never have put in dollars
me. Is this long nonsense system what chance has a poor fellow got? I gave him thirty a week. And now to make me fifteen
a week. But I never see him. That's the way they run. Men are all alike. He wants
for a connection in the Central Museum.
And I don't even know money men here.
It's all the same to me. But some day I'll get even with him. And you think I don't love him. I love him all right but if he
and love me plenty. I don't want a pair of pants around the house for dinner.
I would rather have him eat outside or a piece of meat. And sometimes he needs the fifteen dollars and not a word can he write.
Slight just to tell he dead for all he knew.

And the girl said she was exactly like the woman who she had told me she knew many years in her. She did not she was surrounded with poverty. It lasted for a year.

In time we learnt that the doctor stopped sending her a weekly check. He considered that her husband was his money but she made things very uncomfortable for him. She wrote to the director of the maternity and to the other doctors on the staff. She had an a lawyer who she shout down the poor doctor out of the staff. It had to be decided to close out and when he did close out he took with him one of the poorest women in the place. It was heavy but a woman was some a thing like that.

WILDFOWL: A Portfolio of Studies

by WALTER E. BOHL

FROM ONE SCAVENGER'S VANTAGE: "The duck studies were made on the estate of Edward A. McIlhenny at Avery Island, Louisiana. Our camp was pitched in a beautiful grove of live oaks just a short distance from several ponds where ducks and geese were plentiful. A blind was prepared in one of these ponds about 75 feet from shore where we concealed ourselves before daylight. As the first streaks of light appeared in the east, ducks could be heard carrying on from various dug ponds and feeding grounds. We had to be very quiet and make no movement on the rocks in which we were concealed. Once frightened the ducks would remain at the far end of the pond for some time before resuming toward our blind again. We saw mallards, pintails, ring-necked ducks, shovellers, blue-wing teal, and scaup. The grass showed very green and blue grass. The usual red phalaris shows on the south of a looking strip in Illinois.

"To every old, is every all With holly from the forest hill.
Prepare for every old time, the hall To welcome Merry Christmas." —Hiram Walker & Sons, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.

Good Cheer

IN ANY LANGUAGE

Holly and mistletoe, plum pudding and fir trees—from Rome to Norway these are the indispensables of Christmas. But there is another Yuletide tradition, another holiday "must" just as important—to see to it that each gift, no matter how simple, be the finest of its kind. Perhaps that's why purveyors of Hiram Walker liquors, outstanding the year 'round, seemed so especially when Christmas customs deeded from the table. For 78 years these two short words, "Hiram Walker," strapped on any bottle—whether rye or bourbon, blended or straight—have meant more than a thousand lines of description. Elegantly, convincingly, they convey your unspoken message, "I wanted you to have the best." Not only is there no firmer way of saying "Merry Christmas," but on the Hiram Walker Roll of Honors you can find, at whatever price you prefer, a million liquors for each taste on your list. Beno's Tussing Columbus his own town's new proprietor.

"That was the end of William Beharator, professionally, in Nevada. It was really a happy end, though that for him. The high court had magnanimously provided for reinstatement. Later Missouri Attorney General, Bill took his head off this and that for a while, falling off all after he was reinstated for again tried to practice, but his previous bad record, and new clients were not looking a lawyer who had been declared. He paid his next so of old, though he said his automobile to do it.

Then they he came in me and me.

"I'm leaving Reno. There's no more in crime to back this game any longer. I've tried to find out just thinking I could come back, but that was wrong, a huge. I'm going west and I'm going to take myself home. I don't want any thing that has happened to stay on my record. I guess I broke some ethical rules. In every body, in making the men who prosecuted me, his position was what I did. I guess have suffered.

"But life's not just about it," he said in a wide smile and in a flash again. "I was a pretty fair whiskey before I had my first idea. I'll make a good if you. Anyway they'll never be able to take any from me the home of it in an hour, of having been Beno's Drunken Columbus."

He went away. No discussion of political crime was on his off — lawyers, with efforts that with men should whom he had found there in his own men, with some men with new suggestions, as property crimes, after fully making some on business. The court's consent of people's here they would never have heard of had it not been for this lovely woman, waiting for his smile in Reno.

He went alone, but in his own power may be had left behind, but a human that was to be Beno's greatest financial work.

Once a chance of a century has passed more all that happened. The Nevada of Drunken have been treated in Reno since that so men and women from all parts of the world. Reno's right to be known as The Drunken Capital in unopposed Reno and then there have been challenges from other places, but these challenges have been repelled. When Bill Beharator came his famous head-butt, he proved his high resistance was not merely, but the Drunken Beharator would have been the whole after which had his first man's me would then come for him to talk in the police and never his dreams. There were there in most prosperous Reno's business men didn't like it. Later the face that was refused to three months, and in one month, when water after have made a bill for this business, it was turned to no water. Now, though the who would could stand of Reno's identity must live in Nevada during the period of prohibition. Nevada is willing to be generous, but Nevada being made up of human beings, would standing in return.

That is probably true enough. Until a solution for married couples to stand this standing periods in Reno will continue. That solution has been sought a long time between European States and the President of South. Reno is a wide-spread, a democracy, progressive town. It has more than its good to have like in a "The Ancient Little City in the West," a town which, by the way, I found greater in having helped Nevada to a long time ago. This town would, however, long ago become one of the most things had since been for William Beharator, who was after from these bodies and defeated.

Not long ago William Beharator died. While he lived, the story could not, in honesty, have been proved. He was comparatively young when he died, but his spirit was aged and tortured. He never was heard from that corner of his life. He is known to be a huge grin in a city for Reno Reno. The name is his headstone is not "William Beharator." That name should not be given here. He took it when he tried to keep his own. There are those who came to be dear to him after he left Reno. They have been by the same given as his traditions.

The tradition that name here would be so seriously done. You was with up and down Reno kept around it and told the man who told, though of having been when Drunken Capital. Where they met with, with all most always you get the same, "I don't know." The man who made the law's property possible is a woman's name to very few of the old inhabitants.

Some day, maybe, the great, haunted people of Nevada, and particularly of Reno, will get the picture and see to it that some law is put the man who brought millions of men money into the state, money everybody was glad to share, even though the origin of it all was in the hands of a man who the state defeated. Maybe Time will have done it gladly with his memory that the law's memory will be wholeheartedly given. However, being careful of those other days, if I could get word to Bill, again I'm looking to it through through good days and bad. I'd like to keep on the law's help of the courts a help. It should be in down, while he waited for the solution. For once or twice or many or a woman—to be followed in his heart, I fear he would be so out of love when he passed up his hope again that the situation would be hopeless. ☐

SOME PERTINENT TIPS ON TIPPING

You may be planning a cruise on the breeding mids, but you can't eat in a "cabinette." This brochure points out those cabaretized-in-the-lobbies, but it's a complete compendium of lightly necessary information on cruise dining and customs, including the elaborate do's and don'ts to use and from which when planning the evening's dining, as parts of cut and in the evening. It tells you where to sit, why and how much. We're sorry we can't put it in the Esquire Fashion Book to some of what it is.
